Idea Behind Innovation

Who we are

Laboratory is a place where science and creativity meets to develop, research, and explore new ideas. SkyLabs embraces this great tradition being a virtual lab where people converge their ideas to create, experiment and play with new Web innovations and technologies.

The origin of SkyLabs was on 20th June 2012 and was shaped by two students aged 23.

The name carries the essence of what we are and what we strive to be - the very best in the business of web technology solutions, which is a matter of time for us to be "the foremost".

SkyLabs comprises of young dynamic professionals in the business of providing web technology solutions.

Primarily, our business is one of building software. Using internet as the platform, we design, develop and deploy appropriate technology solutions. The company sticks to the fundamental principle of adding value to the customers' business which indirectly gives meaning to our existence as a company.

SkyLabs is a service and products based company offering a wide array of IT Services across many industries and verticals.

The company designs and develops Web/Software services that can cut costs, drive customer's comfort and meet rigid deadlines offering a competitive advantage.

SkyLabs delivers IT services of the highest quality that gives a head start in today's highly competitive and performance oriented business environment.

We provide integrated software solutions, by analyzing the actual client requirements and developing cost-effective and longterm solutions.

To our clients, it indicates business growth, productivity and true value in their organization. We do this by influencing our deep technology experience, creativity, business insight and above all – passion.
